Whether we realize it or not, we are communicating all the time. And, given the number of platforms and devices that we use as we live out our daily lives, and the multitasking routines that call for, most of us are pretty good communicators opined Dr.Poornima, Assistant professor, Department of English, Maharani's College, Mysuru in her Special lecture Series on the title "Communicative Skills v/s Interpersonal Skills" conducted on 27th of December 2019 by the Department of English in Vidyavardhaka First Grade College, Mysuru.

Speaking on the occasion, she gave a clear idea about what Communication was and defined it as "The act of transmitting a message, opinion, information, instructions, feedback or even gossip, So that we are saying something to someone pretty much every waking moment". Communication is absolutely necessary when building relationships, sharing ideas, delegating responsibilities, managing a team and much more. Also learning and developing good communication skills can help one to succeed in one's career, make one, a competitive job candidate and build one's network. According to her a student may study any language, but it is important that he/she is able to read, write, speak and listen well in order to communicate properly. In her Lecture, she gave us insight about how Communication can be made effective by the use of seven basic principles or in other words 7 C's i.e. Clear, Concise, Concrete, Correct, Coherent, Complete and Courteous.

She also focused her views on the aspects of interpersonal skills. She viewed that, human beings need interpersonal skills to build healthy and conducive relationships among one another. Often called 'people skills', they tend to incorporate one's innate personality traits and how one has learnt to handle certain social situations. Effective interpersonal skills can help one during the job interview process and can have a positive impact on one's career advancement. Emphasizing on the topic, she spoke these skills are vital while interacting with other people at an individual or group level. Hence developing interpersonal skills enhances our success both personally and professionally.

Prof.Manjula.B.M, HOD Dept of Commerce and Management rendered key note address, Dr.Sindhu.C.R, Co-ordinator of Special Lecture Cell, Staff and students were also present on the occasion.
